Hakoah Sports Club

The Hakoah Club made its debut in Victorian Soccer in 1928 when the Suburban League was in existence. In the following year they competed Grade 3 of the Victorian Soccer League, and won the Premiership of that Grade in 1931, going through the season without suffering defeat. In 1932 the Hakoah Club maintained its undefeated record and won the Premiership of Grade 2, thus earning promotion in a few years from a minor league to the highest grade.

The Hakoah Club has proved itself one of the most enterprising clubs in the Metropolitan area. It has three teams (including a Junior Eleven) and is the only club to have a centrally situated enclosed ground—the Exhibition Oval. In 1930 Hakoah won the Newton Cup in a series of Test Matches in Melbourne against the Judaeon League.

Their latest achievement, the present match against the English Test Cricketers, was made possible by the personal efforts of Mr. I. (Jack) Skolnik an exceptionally ardent worker for the Hakoah Club and Soccer in general. Mr. Skolnik enjoys the complete confidence of his club, and with the co-operation of Mr. Harry Bingham, the Victorian Association's Secretary, was given a free hand to complete all the arrangements.

ENGLISH SIDE

This Match will add an International flavour to the game of Soccer in Victoria. This is the first occasion of a match of this description being played here. It was only owing to the Cricketers having completed their Cricket Contract in Australia that it could be made possible. On the last visit of an English Cricket Test Team when the Cricketers finished their contract in Perth, they played a representative team from the Perth Soccer Association.

players on the English side who are members of prominent clubs in the English Leagues.

Mr. Herbert Sutcliffe with the sanction of Mr. P. F. Warner, is the organiser on the English side, and Messrs. Jardine and Wyatt are acting as linesmen.

When the English League started about fifty years ago, it had a membership of twelve clubs, whilst to-day it has eighty-eight, and still more clamoring for entry. There have been various extensions of the league from time to time, the latest being what is known as the "Northern Third," which, although it only commenced operations in the 1921-22 season, is now healthy, thriving, and going strong.

Evolution of Soccer

The game of Soccer, otherwise English Association Football, as we know it to-day, has been played since 1863. But for centuries before then the game was played in a crude, uncouth style, under which we to-day would call "Rafferty's" rules. For Soccer is, of course, a modern evolution of almost innumerable kinds of ball games that were lustily indulged in by our remote arthly forerunners of the misty past. For all games bearing a crude resemblance to those we know so well to-day were known to many nations of antiquity. Ancient tribes of savages, such as Eskimos, Polynesians, Maoris, and Philippine Islanders also played a ball game, which might be described as the germ to which Soccer owes its origin.

Football, which in its several modern forms, may be defined as a game between two opposing sides played with a large inflated ball, which is propelled by either the feet alone or by both hands and feet, was first classified and standardised in England in 1863.

In that year Soccer, or English Football became a distinct game, inasmuch that it became distinguished from other forms of the game which permitted the handling and carrying of the ball. Rules were drawn up in October, 1863, by a committee consisting of schools of Eton, Harrow, Rugby, Marlborough, Shrewsbury, and Westminster. The code of the laws then decided upon settled the fundamental principle of "Association". That being of course, as nearly everyone knows, the prohibiting of any player on either side, excepting the rival goalkeepers, handling the ball whilst same is in play. The result of that committee's deliberations - the Association code almost as it stands to-day - proved to be the real foundation of England's premier winter sport. By the early seventies of last century the new form of an age-old pastime had gained a soundly established hold upon the youth of England. The International Football Association Board-England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales being the countries represented thereon - was brought into being in 1882, and a universal code of "Soccer" laws agreed upon.

Shouldst thou not be able to keep all these Commandments both on and off the field, keep thyself away from a game which can do much better without thee.
